“Adam Cordover has one of the most engaging presentation styles I have seen during my many years of working with Collaborative Professionals and trainers. He is one of those rare presenters that has the courage to put himself in the moment and engage his audience in real time. His inquisitive nature and ability to adapt to what is happening in the room provide entertaining and insightful ways to learn the complex skills that are crucial to our work. His true passion for Collaborative Practice and his ready humor make it easy to stay engaged.”

“Adam is a phenomenal presenter and trainer. It is not just that he has a tremendous grasp on the material he brings to the participants, it is his manner of delivery, his training style. He is fully engaging, out of the box and entertaining. His trainings are always highly educational but in a painless and actually enjoyable way. He truly is on the cutting edge of presenters and I would recommend him without hesitation to those who are seeking the training as well as to groups or sponsors seeking to bring to their communities that effective, high level of training that Adam is known for.”

Notable Cases

- Shaw v. Shaw – Collaborative Attorney & Appellate Attorney - The first divorce case to challenge Florida’s Defense of Marriage Act and Florida’s constitutional amendment banning recognition of same-sex marriages (Request to ratify collaborative settlement agreement and grant divorce dismissed by trial court for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, appealed to the Second District, briefly sent to the Florida Supreme Court, and reversed and remanded by the Second District)
- Nelson and Nelson – Collaborative Attorney - The first pro bono collaborative divorce case completed in Florida

Pro Bono Work

I have done pro bono work independently, but also through the following organizations:

- HCBA-NGD Joint Collaborative Pro Bono Project (Offering the interdisciplinary collaborative family law model to families in need)

“As a Collaborative practitioner in Florida, I have observed the formative work Adam has done to help develop and grow collaborative practice groups around the state...Working with Adam as a trainer and as a committee co-chair, I have found him to be industrious, responsive, well-spoken, and reliable. He is both a team player and an independent thinker who can artfully engage in difficult conversations for the benefit of organizational goals. From a personal perspective, Adam is an individual with drive and integrity who is a pleasure to work with. He has a seemingly endless supply of creative energy, optimism, and good humor.”

Barbara Kelly, Ph.D.
Former Treasurer and Co-Chair
of Research Committee,
International Academy of Collaborative Professionals
